FROM: MPOI S. K. Pratt, Detective
      Violent Crimes Task Force

SUBJECT: PROTOCOL FOR RESPONSE TO ACTS OF VIOLENCE

Several questions have been asked about the Violent Crimes Task Force related to responses to acts of violence. I have outlined the following, which should clarify several topics related to this issue.

The response to violence, which is commonly referred as the “homicide response”, was created to respond to acts of violence within the community for two reasons. The first reason is to develop leads and other witnesses or information not already known. The Greensboro Police Department does not do a response to solved acts of violence. The Winston-Salem Police Department will not do a response to a solved crime unless there are special circumstances and/or the Homicide Unit requests one. The High Point Police Department responds to all homicides, regardless if they are solved or not, which is for the next reason listed.

The second reason is to show support for the community and that we will not tolerate acts of violence in the community. This is an important part of the partnership between the community and the police department, which I believe is evident when comparing High Point to Winston and Greensboro. This has also played a factor in our special projects and day-to-day routine.

Once a homicide occurs, the Task Force is notified. The Task Force then sends out phone calls and e-mails to our community and law enforcement partners. This is done for scheduling purposes to ensure our partners as well as our department has sufficient manpower to attend. We have the Greensboro Police Department, Probation, and Winston-Salem, as well as our Street Crimes, Housing, Property and Major Crimes, Violent Crimes and Community Outreach who attend the response.

Part of the foundation for the call-in and the responses is the ‘showing’ of support from the community and other law enforcement agencies. A perfect example of this is the homicide from Archdale Road. The Task Force was notified on a Monday. Greensboro has a response on Wednesday; Winston has another on Thursday, so that left Tuesday or Friday. We had ours on Friday to ensure participation from all of our partners from both the community and law enforcement.

Several of the participants who attend our response, also attend responses at other agencies. To ensure a continued ‘spirit’ of cooperation between the Triad Agencies, both law enforcement and the community, we should make every effort to avoid schedule conflicts regarding the responses.
